Liza Wang brings fifty years of showmanship to Resorts World Genting in October

The veteran Hong Kong diva will be joined on stage by her husband, and fellow Cantonese opera artist, Law Ka-Ying

Genting Highlands, 17 July 2018 – Not many entertainers can claim a full five decades of limelight as a superstar, but Liza Wang Ming-Chuen can. Fondly known as the ‘Big Sister’ of the Hong Kong entertainment industry, Wang is beloved by Chinese-speaking communities across Asia for her glittering acting career, her prowess as a Cantonese opera singer and her razor-sharp repartee as an emcee. She brings all these skills, and more, to the stage of Resorts World Genting’s Arena of Stars on October 27, 2018 for a special, one-night-only Liza Wang Live in Genting concert.

Born in Shanghai and raised in Hong Kong, Wang first captured attention by being one of the nine finalists of the first ever Rediffusion Hong Kong Artist Academy in 1967. From there, she rose up the ranks in the television world, joining TVB in 1971 and debuting as a lead actress in Eternal Spring. Along with her long-time friend Adam Cheng, she starred in the classic wuxia martial arts drama Romance of The Book and Sword in 1976 and established herself as an acting force in the award-winning A House Is Not A Home in 1977. Her acting career continued to blossom through the 1980s, 1990s and 2000s, when she won four TVB acting awards for the series At The Threshold Of An Era II, Awakening Story and War Of In-Laws.

In parallel with her acting career, Wang also pursued a very successful singing career. Performing both Cantopop and Mandopop songs, her songs were initially the theme songs of her TV series – including the classic Using Love To Steal A Heart, the theme song of the megahit TV series The Shell Game (1980). She continues to contribute theme songs for contemporary TV series, like Pearl Of The East for Glittering Days (2006), as well as performing pop duets with her friend Adam Cheng. She is also a trained Cantonese opera actress – an art form that combines classical Chinese singing, acting and acrobatics. It was on the Cantonese opera stage that Wang met her husband, Law Ka-Ying, himself a popular Cantonese opera artist and actor who will be joining Wang on stage at Resorts World Genting. Expect to be thrilled by Wang’s timeless songs and entertained by her unparalleled stage presence in this very special concert.
